WW II bomb excavated from under Thornhill house

Ahifa Weissner, of Creek Road in Thornhill, examines World War II mortar shell discovered by members of the 4-H Boots and Saddles Club Monday at 7:30 p.m. Cat blade marks were seen on the bomb when it was discovered. After several attempts by a Vancouver bomb squad at the local dump the bomb was eventually exploded.

Peter Weissner stands by her home showing where it was recently excavated for the new basement foundation. The bomb lay in the excavated area until it was moved by the cat to the dirt pile in the background. The shell is believed to have been used in World War II by the military at the airport during its practises. It is apparently one of two such shells found in the area, and more may be buried there. Peter Weissner is a Terrace barber.

Israel's actions depend on Syria and PLO

JERUSALEM (CP) — Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir warned today that Israel will disregard its troop withdrawal agreement with Lebanon and "act as it sees fit" if Syria and the PLO refuse to pull their soldiers out of Lebanon.

Shamir told the Knesset (Israeli parliament) the agreement would be signed "in the coming days" by both Israel and Lebanon. But if Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization refuse to withdraw their forces, "the agreement will be considered suspended," he said.

"Israel will be free to act as it sees fit and according to its interests," he declared.

Shamir spoke to parliament to blunt criticism of the accord, worked out by U.S. State Secretary George Shultz in two weeks of shuttle diplomacy. A vote on the pact is expected in the Knesset next week.

Opposition Labor party Leader Shimon Peres charged that the government had bungled both last year's invasion of Lebanon and the troop withdrawal negotiations. Peres said his party would not support an agreement that "perpetuates illusions and ignores reality."

Although the clauses of the pact have been widely publicized, Eshamir's speech contained the first official version of them.

He said the agreement began by declaring "the end of the state of war" and recognition by each country of the other's territorial integrity. It bans hostile propaganda and exploitation of either country's territory for terrorist actions, he said.

It also provides for formal negotiations on trade and border crossings six months after Israel's withdrawal, but in the meantime, the border traffic, which began shortly after Israel's invasion last June, will continue, Shamir said.

Israel also would maintain a liaison office in Beirut, he said.

On the military side, the agreement provides for total removal of all Palestinian fighters and Syrian forces from Lebanon, and close co-operation between Israeli and Lebanese armies in a security belt stretching roughly 40 kilometres from the Israel-Lebanon border.

He did not elaborate on the key outstanding issue, the future role of Saad Haddad, the breakaway Lebanese army major whose close ties with Israel have made him a renegade in Lebanese eyes and a loyal ally in Israeli eyes.

But Shamir said the troops serving under Haddad "will be integrated into the Lebanese Army and will serve as the kernel of the force which is to guard the security in the area."

He said military problems would be dealt with by a commission of Israeli and Lebanese officers and Lebanon would impose "special limitations" in the security zone "to prevent the reconstitution of a terrorist infrastructure."

Shamir said Syria's "extreme statements" denouncing the agreement "have no factual basis."

As Shamir was speaking in the Knesset, 23 wives and children of Soviet diplomats left Beirut for home today, bringing to 110 the number of Soviet dependents that has left Lebanon this week in a move that helped fuel fears of renewed crisis in Lebanon.

On Tuesday, Shultz called on Moscow to urge the withdrawal of its Syrian allies from Lebanon, but western diplomats in Damascus said Syria is apt to demand major concessions before obliging.

Syria has not detailed its conditions for pulling its troops out of Lebanon, but the diplomats said Damascus probably would demand guarantees against possible Israeli attacks in eastern Lebanon's Bekaa valley, as well as assurances that the Lebanese government would not take an anti-Syrian line.

The lack of Syrian co-operation has clouded the future of the U.S.-mediated draft agreement between Israel and Lebanon for the withdrawal of uninvited foreign forces from Lebanon. Israel is not required to withdraw its 25,000 troops unless Syrian and Palestine Liberation Organization forces also leave.

Shultz, in Paris for a meeting of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, was scheduled to return to Washington today after a trip of more than two weeks which included his shuttling between Jerusalem and Beirut to help complete the troop withdrawal pact.

He told reporters Tuesday that Washington was aware of Syrian objections to the agreement.

But he added: "That is not the point. The point is will they withdraw when the government of Lebanon asks them to. I have a good indication Lebanon will ask."

He asked the Soviet Union, Syria's main supplier of military aid, to "get on the side of peace" in Lebanon by asking Syria to withdraw its 38,000 troops. Moscow has increased its presence in Syria since Israel invaded Lebanon on June 6 to destroy PLO guerrilla bases there.

In Beirut, Soviet Ambassador Alexander Soldatov said families of Soviet diplomats were sent home Tuesday for summer vacation and the move was "wrongly interpreted" as a signal of war.

Israel and the United States have signed a letter of understanding which says the withdrawal accord would not become effective until certain conditions were met, said a source, who asked to remain anonymous.

These include a return of the 16 Israelis held prisoner by Syria and the PLO since last summer. Other conditions were not disclosed but it was assumed if Syria holds out for concessions, Israel would not implement its part of the agreement.

In Beirut, two bombs exploded Tuesday night, wounding six people and damaging buildings, police said.

Israel's military command in Tel Aviv reported unidentified gunmen wounded an Israeli soldier in Lebanon's central mountains, where Christian and Syrian-backed Druse militias battled last week. The command said Israeli soldiers returned the fire and pursued the attackers.

Marshall ends prison years as reserve plumber

HALIFAX (CP) — After being acquitted Tuesday of a murder that sent him to federal prison at the age of 17, Donald Marshall Jr. is rebuilding his life with the only skill he acquired during 11 years behind bars.

The 29-year-old year Micmac told a news conference he starts work Monday at the Shubenacadie Indian reserve, about 50 kilometres north of Halifax, as a plumber. Marshall learned the trade at the maximum-security prison in Dorchester, N.B.

"It's the only thing I learned in prison," he said bitterly. Marshall, who comes from a rural reserve near Sydney, N.S., and has a Grade 8 education, was convicted of killing teenager Sandy Seale in Sydney in May, 1971, but always insisted he was innocent.

Marshall said he has no respect for the Canadian justice system. "It was not me that was wrong. It was the court system that was wrong."

The Nova Scotia Supreme Court appeals division absolved Marshall of all blame in the murder, but said he was largely responsible for his conviction because he lied at his trial.

"Any miscarriage of justice is more apparent than real," wrote Mr. Justice Ian MacKeigan for the appeal court panel.

During the review of the case, a witness said Marshall and Seale were involved in a robbery attempt when the murder took place. The witness said he saw Roy Ebsary of Sydney, one of the intended victims, stab Seale. Marshall gave a different story during his trial.

"In attempting to defend himself against the charge of murder, Or. Marshall admittedly committed perjury for which he could still be charged," the decision said.

"By lying, he helped secure his own conviction. He misled his lawyers and presented to the jury a version of the facts that was so far-fetched as to be incapable of belief."

Although he has spent more than one-third of his life in prison, Marshall said he wants to put the experience behind him. "I don't know what I missed (of life) but what I missed I got it all back today."

Marshall told reporters he went to a bar to celebrate when he heard the news from his mother. He said he believes he deserves some compensation, but has not taken action.

Stephen Aronson, his lawyer, said in a statement: "No decision has been made as to whether to proceed in the courts or whether to look to other avenues of seeking compensation."

Aronson called on Attorney General Harry How to initiate a public inquiry into the conviction and said there is enough evidence to charge another person.

When asked about the possibility of provincial compensation for Marshall, How said he would not immediately commit the government in any way.

Marshall said he would also like to see action taken against the two members of the Sydney police force who were responsible for his incarceration. "They had better wake up before they start putting people away."

Aronson said the case is not closed. "There remains a dark cloud hanging heavily over the original investigation by the Sydney city police department and many questions remain unanswered."

The court reviewed Marshall's case last December under directions from then-justice minister Jean Chretien who had been given new evidence by the RCMP.

Marshall was convicted largely on the testimony of two witnesses who later admitted they had lied.

Witness Maynard Chant of Louisburg, N.S., told the court he lied because he was scared and felt pressured into giving a statement that was not true.

"When I tried to tell the truth, the people taking the statement didn't believe me."

Witness John Pratico did not testify at the review because psychiatrists said he was unreliable and suffered from a mental disorder. However, Pratico said in a signed statement he lied when he said he saw Marshall stab Seale.

Surplus gained

OTTAWA (CP) — The country chalked up a $4.01-billion merchandise trade surplus in the first quarter of the year, $530 million more than in the same period of 1982, a year when a record $17.8-billion surplus was posted.

However, due to a sharp increase in imports during the quarter, the surplus was $940 million less than in the fourth quarter of last year and less than that recorded in any of the two previous quarters, Statistics Canada said today.

Exports increased by 2.1 per cent to $20.63 billion during the first quarter, following a 9.3-per-cent decline in the fourth quarter of 1982, a 3.3-per-cent increase in the third and a 5.3-per-cent rise in the second.

Imports jumped nine per cent to $16.61 billion in the quarter, following a 13.2-per-cent decline in the fourth quarter of last year, a 3.8-per-cent increase in the third and a 0.3-per-cent decline in the second.

During March, exports declined more than imports, reducing the monthly merchandise trade surplus by $14 million to $1.35 billion. While slightly less than in February, the surplus was above the $1.22 billion recorded in January. The trend, which trade experts argue gives a better picture of what's happening than month-to-month or quarter-to-quarter changes, shows a half-year decline in exports and imports has ended.

However the turnaround in imports appears to be somewhat stronger and to have begun in December, a month earlier than the turnaround in exports. As a result the trade surplus has been shrinking faster since it peaked in mid-1982.

Motor vehicle products have been mainly responsible for the turnaround in both exports and imports.

However, during March motor vehicle products were among the goods showing the largest declines in both exports and imports.

Largest declines in exports during the month were for crude oil, down 25 per cent to $195 million; lumber products, down 16 per cent to $445 million and motor vehicle products, down 3.3 per cent to $1.56 billion following a $120-million increase in February.

Largest increases in exports were for organic chemicals, up 94 per cent to $145 million; wheat, up 11.1 per cent to $445 million, following a $100-million increase in February, and iron ores and concentrates and scrap, up 100 per cent to $100 million.

Largest decline in imports during the month was for motor vehicle products, which fell by 15.7 per cent to $1.87 billion, following a $380-million increase in February.

Crude oil imports showed the largest increase, rising by 35 per cent to $295 million after a $250-million decline in February.

Although the decline in exports and imports during March was due to a weakness in trade with the U.S. during the month, the turnaround from the downward trend is largely due to a general pickup in trade with the U.S., which accounts for more than two thirds of all Canada's trade. Exports to the U.S. in March declined by 3.5 per cent or $180 million to $4.99 billion following an increase of $285 million in February.

Also hurting exports during the month was a 21-per-cent or $85-million decline in sales of goods to Japan, following a $75-million increase in February.

Imports from the U.S. in March fell by nine per cent or $385 million, following a $265-million increase in February.

Reagan wins

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will narrowly win approval in the House of Representatives for construction of the MX missile, say House supporters.

Both the House and Senate are expected to vote soon on whether to build the MX, a 10-warhead missile Reagan says is needed to improve the aging U.S. land-based nuclear deterrent and to force Soviet concessions at arms controls talks.

"I wouldn't be over-optimistic but I think it will pass (in the House)," said Representative Samuel Stratton (D-N.Y.) after the session between Reagan and the congressmen.

"I told him I thought he was winning and he seemed surprised," said Representative Roy Dyson (D-Md.).

Before the congressional session, Reagan met with his national security council to discuss possible changes in the arms reduction proposal.

The meeting "was not a decision-making session," said an administration official who declined to be named.

Congress has rejected two previous plans for basing the MX and Reagan named a blue-ribbon panel headed by Brent Scowcroft, former national security adviser, to come up with a plan that would pass.

Reagan has publicly endorsed the panel's recommendations, which included changing his proposal at the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks in Geneva, Switzerland.

The talks, scheduled to resume June 8, have been stalled by Soviet resistance to a U.S. proposal that would do away with a large number of land-based missiles that make up the heart of the Soviet nuclear force.

Canada does not support France's proposal

Canada does not support French President Francois Mitterrand's proposal to call an international summit to reform the world monetary system, Finance Minister Marc Lalonde said in Paris on Tuesday.

Lalonde, who attended a two-day ministerial meeting of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, said "Canada has had for the last several years a floating exchange rate that has served it well."

Mitterrand said the conference goal would be to "re-launch and stabilize" what he called "the organization of the reconstruction of an international economic order."

He compared the proposed conference to the 1944 Bretton Woods meeting where fixed exchange rates were decided. This system was abandoned by the United States in 1971. Lalonde said Canada will be glad to hear France's arguments on the issue at the end of the month when the heads of state and governments of the seven leading industrialized countries meet in Williamsburg, Va.

Asked whether he shared European pessimism on the possible failure of the Williamsburg summit, Lalonde said he felt the actual disagreements within the seven are "not greater than in the past."

Ontario and Quebec followed Ottawa's lead and introduced pre-business budgets Tuesday.

Quebec Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau brought down a budget offering modest incentives for investors while holding the line on the provincial deficit. More aggressive was Ontario Treasurer Frank Miller, who offered hundreds of millions of dollars in tax incentives and incentives to help nurse economic recovery.

Meanwhile, the Royal Bank said its composite indicator, the Trendicator, rose at a record rate in the first quarter of 1983, shooting to its highest point since the recession began in the third quarter of 1981.

The annual rate, during the quarter, based on seven economic indicators, was 11.4 per cent. The bank said the upswing supports its theory that the Canadian economy "is moving onto a recovery path."

And the chairman of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce said in Vancouver that the prime lending rate could fall to nine per cent within the next six to nine months.

Russell Harrison said the prime could drop another one or even two points from the current 11 per cent, to its lowest rate in more than five years.

In Montreal, Celanese Canada president Ernest Drew called on Ottawa to tighten import quotas on foreign textiles.

Drew told the company's annual meeting "an excessive amount of garment imports into Canada in the first quarter" would "choke off our customer base."

He said the import share of textiles in Canada grew to 40 per cent from 28 per cent during the last few years.

In other business news:

— The Toronto Stock Exchange reached another record close, climbing 28.32 points to 2487.7. At Montreal, the composite jumped 3.48 to a record of 407.05. At Vancouver, price levels were up 7.5 per cent in the last eight sessions to a high since March 15.

— Canadian Occidental Petroleum Ltd. of Calgary said it is negotiating with its parent to take over Canada-Cities Service Ltd., also of Calgary. Occidental Petroleum Corp. of Los Angeles got control of Canadian-Cities Services when it took over Cities Service Co. of Tulsa, Okla., last June.

Trudeau sees two issues

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday the issue of cruise missiles — and their testing in Canada — is separate from overall U.S. nuclear policy and should be dealt with that way.

Trudeau told the Commons the NATO decision to deploy cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in Europe to counter the Soviet Union's SS-20s is a logical attempt to deter nuclear war.

"Does it not make sense in Europe to try and have a counter threat to the Soviet Union so that it will not use its SS-20s on western Europe any more than it would use its ICBMs (long range missiles) on the United States?" he said. Trudeau was responding to renewed pleas from New Democrat Leader Ed Broadbent to refuse the cruise tests. Broadbent raised the subject a day after Trudeau's office released an open letter to Canadians on the issue and the public controversy that has resulted.

The prime minister told the Commons NATO's efforts to deter nuclear war are separate from the overall U.S. nuclear policy.

"I am not supporting President Reagan's overall nuclear policy. It is not my purpose to do so. I have not been asked to do so. What I am supporting is NATO's two-track policy," he told Broadbent, referring to the decision to deploy missiles in Europe while pursuing an arms-reduction agreement with the Soviet Union.

Meanwhile, Opposition Leader Erik Nielsen's attempt to embarrass the NDP over its opposition to the cruise apparently backfired.

Nielsen asked the government to release documents showing the former NDP government of Saskatchewan's approval of Ottawa's use of a weapons range in that province for the cruise tests.

But Broadbent later told reporters the provincial government had written a letter in March, 1982, specifically opposing the cruise tests in Saskatchewan.

Broadbent castigated Nielsen for raising "irrelevant issues" while saying nothing on the cruise debate.

Broadbent agreed with Broadbent that Canada should act as a peaceful power and try to bring about nuclear disarmament instead of contributing to an arms buildup.

He said there are only a few Canadians who have such anti-American feelings.

Commons security guards hustled several anti-cruise protesters out of the Commons after they rose silently from the visitors gallery wearing "No Cruise" T-shirts.

Rate matched

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government appears to be increasing regulations at a rate at least equal to that of the 1970s, says the president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association.

For example, the Department of Transport estimates 300,000 goods will fall under criteria that trigger application of a proposed regulation governing transportation of dangerous goods, Roy Phillips told a meeting of the review board of the Canadian General Standard Board on Tuesday.

The proposed regulations are almost incomprehensible and an alternative approach to regulation, proposed by the CMA, would restrict the application to about 3,000 goods, Phillips said.

Reducing the regulatory burden is critical to the competitiveness of Canadian industry, Phillips said. An analysis of 22 major industrialized countries by the European Management Forum ranked Canada 18th in terms of the detrimental effect of rules, regulations and bureaucracy on the efficient conduct of business.

But, while Phillips said regulatory reform appears to be a dead issue in the federal government, an Ottawa consultant who specializes in the area said the reform move needs help in the form of a push from the business community.

"The key to the campaign is political momentum. There is still strong interest (in the federal government) in regulatory reform, but it needs a push," said Eric Milligan.

The recent announcement that 14 federal government departments and agencies will push semi-annual agendas, spelling out possible and proposed regulations, is evidence of progress, he said.

During the recession, business groups focused their efforts on helping their membership survive, but as they prepare for a recovery, business is becoming nervous about the possible regulation of new technologies, Milligan said.

Milligan noted the term regulatory reform is, within the federal government, being replaced by the phrase "management of regulation." Business interests have a stake in maintaining some regulations, such as those governing the airline and telecommunications industries, he said. As well, regulatory reform can be hindered by bureaucratic interests, who see reform drives as explicit criticism of their activities.

A standards board report concluded regulations should not be imposed on industry unless consultation with all affected parties ensures industry cannot rectify the problem with voluntary self-regulation, which can be more effective and cost-efficient.

The review board of the standards board passed a resolution urging federal and provincial governments to use existing standards, developed under the National Standards System, in legislation governing mandatory compliance.

Citing the British white paper, Standards, Quality and International Competitiveness, the review board also urged governments to participate more in national and international standards development and to promote the use of standards for quality assurance, productivity, and price competition.

Menopause doesn't end sexuality

ATLANTA (AP) — The beginning of menopause should not be the end of female sexual activity, say doctors who admit the main problem for older women may be finding willing and able partners.

"Sexuality during the postmenopausal years is extremely variable," said Dr. James Batts, professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the Medical College of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia.

"A woman's interest in sex during the menopausal years and beyond will depend on the physiologic and psycho-emotional changes she experiences. Her sexual expression will depend on the availability of a sexual partner."

There is a general misconception that sexual interest and activity should end at about 50, around the time a woman reaches menopause, Batts said.

But the aging process merely produces changes in a woman's sexual response cycle, not the end of it. Some of those changes may require education and treatment, Batts told a news conference Tuesday at the annual meeting of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists.

In their later years men and women both slow down, but a woman has the ability to have sexual experiences throughout her life while a man's activity will decrease as he grows older, Batts said.

Heart attacks, strokes, hysterectomy or prostatectomy should not preclude an active sex life for anyone, says the National Institute on Aging. In fact, "a pattern of regular sexual activity helps to preserve sexual ability," the institute advises.

A recent study at the University of South Carolina said most sexual problems experienced by menopausal women are caused by the loss of lubricant in the vagina, which can result in painful tears in the vaginal wall during intercourse. The study found the problem was alleviated by small doses of the female hormone estrogen.

"What we want is for people who are interested in sex to get proper counselling," Batts said. "If it is not there, they should certainly consider it, because it is a pleasurable part of life."

For older women, he said, finding a suitable sex partner may be difficult because:

— Many older women are separated, widowed or never married.

— Often the husband is having performance problems and avoids sexual activity. If the wife attributes this avoidance to her declining physical attractiveness, she too may avoid sexual activity in order to spare herself the pain of frustration or rejection.

— A man's interest in sex is usually initiated by what he sees. So a woman's loss of youth and attractiveness decreases her chances for meaningful sexual encounters. "One of the best treatments for menopause is a loving and understanding husband," Batts said. "If you love somebody and they look a little different, that is not what is important."

Sex after menopause may not be for all women, Dr. Vicki Lynn Seltzer, director of obstetrics and gynecology at Queens Hospital Centre, Jamaica, N.Y., told the news conference.

"I don't think we should impose upon women the idea that they should continue to have sexual relations if they don't want to," she said. "They should not take this as a mandate to have sex."

Seltzer said doctors are telling older women that sex is there, if they can continue to enjoy it, and it will be there as long as they want to enjoy it.

Borowski wants legal action against Morgentaler

WINNIPEG (CP) — Dr. Henry Morgentaler said Tuesday his controversial Winnipeg clinic has performed its first abortions and has indicated he will fight in court if charges are laid.

Joe Borowski, a former Manitoba highways minister who has been crusading against the clinic for several months, called for legal action.

Speaking in Regina where he is contesting Canada's abortion laws in Court of Queen's Bench, Borowski said Attorney General Roland Penner should resign if the Manitoba government doesn't lay charges.

Penner said it is up to the police to look into the situation. Herb Stephen, Winnipeg police crime superintendent, said police cannot lay charges against Morgentaler on the basis of his statements.

"We have to wait until we get a complaint from someone," Stephen said, adding that such a complaint would have to come from someone who had an abortion or someone who had "first-hand knowledge of one taking place."

Wayne Myshkowaky, senior Manitoba Crown attorney, said a complaint would be investigated by police and their findings would go to a Crown prosecutor to see if court action was warranted.

Borowski, who resigned his New Democratic Party government portfolio in 1971 over the use of taxpayers' money to pay for therapeutic abortions, said he does not plan to file a complaint.

"I think we should set up a picket line in the legislature until Premier (Howard) Pawley fires the attorney general," said Borowski.

If the only NDP government in Canada brings charges, Morgentaler has said he would fight the issue in court, adding:

"I would rather not go through the courts. My job is to provide medical care to the people who are deprived of it."

Morgentaler's clinic, which opened Friday, has been the centre of debate for several months and police were called in Tuesday to cool arguments between anti-abortionists and some area residents.

Demonstrations by persons for and against abortions started last week after Borowski parked a motorhome next to the clinic.

"The clinic has already performed abortions but I do not want to disclose exactly when," Morgentaler said in Montreal.

"I'd rather not have television cameras and other media people at the time abortions are being performed."

"The clinic is open now for people who need this service and women who come will be well-treated."

Illegal under the Criminal Code.

Morgentaler's clinics in Montreal and Winnipeg are the only medical facilities providing abortions outside of hospitals. In 1973 he spent 10 months in jail for performing illegal abortions in Quebec.

Morgentaler also plans to open clinics in other parts of Canada, including Toronto and St. John's, Nfld.

"I don't think any woman asking the clinic in Winnipeg for an abortion will have to wait longer than five to six days."

The clinic opened after the city of Winnipeg granted an occupancy permit. However, the Manitoba government has refused to declare the clinic a hospital, meaning any abortions performed there would be illegal under the Criminal Code.

Morgentaler's clinics in Montreal and Winnipeg are the only medical facilities providing abortions outside of hospitals. In 1973 he spent 10 months in jail for performing illegal abortions in Quebec.

Morgentaler also plans to open clinics in other parts of Canada, including Toronto and St. John's, Nfld.

Morgentaler said in a telephone interview abortions will continue at the Winnipeg clinic, but not every day.

Meanwhile, anti-abortionist protesters, picketing in the back lane at the rear entrance to the clinic, and area residents exchanged heated words.

Thatcher in lead

LONDON (AP) — The first public opinion poll issued since Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's call for a June 9 election gave her Conservative party a 15-point lead today — more than twice the margin by which it ousted Labor party in 1979.

But despite the lead in the polls, Conservative MP Norman St. John-Stevens said the election is "not going to be the cakewalk some people imagine."

That view was reflected on the London Stock Exchange, where share values dropped $4.7 million Tuesday. The drop was attributed in part to fears the socialist-Labor party, which lost the overall voting in 1979 by seven percentage points, could be voted back in power.

Labor has frightened Britain's business community by pledging to raise taxes and state spending, increase government ownership and impose exchange controls.

By early afternoon, The Financial Times index had plunged 22.2 points, nearing the record 24-point drop in February of 1974 when the last Labor party government took power. Before the end of trading, however, the index recovered about nine points to close at 676.7, down 13.5 for the day.

Brokers said buyers apparently were mindful that Thatcher's poll lead does not take into account the more than one-third of the electorate who remain undecided.

Many commentators see the June election as a stark choice between a Labor party that has shifted left since losing power and Thatcher, the Conservatives' most right-wing leader since the Second World War.

The poll, published in The Daily Star newspaper, was conducted Tuesday, 24 hours after Thatcher announced the election date. It covered 1,047 adults in 53 of the country's 650 electoral districts, the surveying company said.

Conservative leaders held their first strategy meetings Tuesday and Thatcher cancelled talks with U.S. President Reagan scheduled for May 20-27 in Washington.

The prime minister's office said she has not yet decided whether to forgo the seven-country economic summit meeting in Williamsburg, Va., May 28-30, and the European Common Market summit in Stuttgart, West Germany, June 6-7.

Leaders of the 20-month-old centrist alliance of the Social Democratic and Liberal parties say they are out to win despite computer analyses of local government elections last week that showed the Social Democrats could be trounced.

The Social Democrats' current 29 members in the 635-seat House of Commons are mainly ex-Labor party members who defected when the alliance was formed two years ago. The Liberals have 13 members.

Vancouver reserved

VANCOUVER (CP) — Downtown Vancouver is the largest Indian reserve in Canada, Rusty Wilson, executive director of the Mission Indian Fellowship Centre, said Tuesday.

He said nothing is being done for more than 35,000 Indians in the Vancouver area who are affected by drug and alcohol problems.

"A lot of the drug and alcohol problems are in the urban centres, and there's nothing for them," he said in an interview.

Twenty-two Indian Friendship Centres across B.C., which provide services to status, non-status, Metis and Inuit people, are lobbying the provincial government to match the money the federal government offers under the National Native Alcohol and Drug Abuse Program.

In April, 1982, the federal Ministry of Health and Welfare announced $154 million in funding for alcohol and drug programs on Indian reserves. The ministry also said it would work with provincial governments to provide similar services for natives who live off the reserves.

Wilson said that while some provinces have taken up the offer, B.C. has not made a move to help its off-reserve Indians.

"The province will not recognize the urban native," Wilson says. "Downtown Vancouver is the largest reserve in Canada."

The friendship centres have prepared a position paper saying the province should give off-reserve Indians equal access to program dollars for drug and alcohol abuse, with the program to be carried out through the centres.

Man sentenced

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP) — A man who sold three handguns illegally because he believed CIA agents were trying to collect handguns in this north coast community for use in Nicaragua has been sentenced to two years probation and a $500 fine.

Greg Gardiner was sentenced Tuesday by county court Judge Ralph Hutchinson on a total of seven counts including five firearms convictions and two counts of possession of stolen property.

At the time Gardiner was found guilty April 19, his lawyer, Blair Johnstone, said Gardiner should be released because he was acting under duress. The Criminal Code says that any person who believes they will be harmed or killed unless they commit an offence will be excused from charges.

At that time Gardiner told the court that a man named Victor Goguin had represented himself as a CIA agent and said he was collecting guns in the area for use in Nicaragua. Johnstone said Goguin was a nut who tricked people into breaking the law. Goguin has now vanished.

"He comes to Prince Rupert," he said. "He goes to the police and says 'I think I can round up some action for you.' He goes to the seedy people in town and tells them he's from the CIA. They (the police) didn't know what he was doing."

Goguin threatened Gardiner, said Johnstone.

"My client was convinced that while he was going about rounding up guns he was watched by CIA agents on the roofs of buildings with M-16s pointed at him. My client is virtually a dummy."

Smith, Moog shine in goal

Islanders win classic Stanley Cup opener

EDMONTON (CP) — New York Islanders shut down Edmonton Oilers' high-powered offense for 50 minutes Tuesday night and then got survival goaltending from Billy Smith to emerge 3-0 victors in the first game of the Stanley Cup final.

The second game of the best-of-seven National Hockey League championship series will be played here Thursday.

The three-time champion Islanders knew they had to play a tight defensive game against the league's most powerful offensive team and they did just that.

Playing for the first time in a week and in the Stanley Cup final for the first time, the Oilers were tentative in the first period. They weren't skating and erratic passing, combined with the Islanders' checking, choked Edmonton's usually smooth-flowing offense.

Once the Islanders got the game's first goal, by Duane Sutter at 5:36 of the initial period after a shot deflected off an Edmonton defenceman right on to Sutter's stick, New York seized the opportunity to establish their game plan.

"We know we have to play tight against Edmonton or they'll blow us out of the rink," said veteran goaltender Billy Smith who earned his second shutout in his last three Stanley Cup final games.

With their offence severely weakened by the absence of Mike Bossy who missed the game with tonsillitis, the Islanders set up a nearly leakproof defensive shield in front of Smith.

Seldom did the Oilers get a clean shot on a rebound or have time to set up in the slot area. Even on 10 minutes of power plays, the Oilers were unable to mount a sustained attack.

"It was a great performance," said Smith. "Whenever you get a shutout, it's an all-around team affair, not just one guy."

While his teammates did the bulk of the work in the first 50 minutes, it was mainly Smith in the final 10 when the Oilers, who have scored 498 regular season and playoff goals this season, finally found some skating room and got their offence in gear.

"The performance by Billy Smith tonight was extraordinary," said Islanders' coach Al Arbour. "When we let down in front, Smith was right there to block everything."

Smith didn't have many dangerous shots to block through two periods, although the Oilers fired 26 drives at him, but he had his hands full in the final half period.

Edmonton had five excellent scoring chances in that span, twice getting the puck behind Smith but not into the net. Glenn Anderson beat Smith but then slid the puck through the crease near the 10-minute mark and defenceman Kevin Lowe put a close-in backhand shot the right spot.

"I didn't get beat, you're not beat unless the puck's in the net," Smith said of Lowe's shot. The veteran New York netminder was the last person to shut out the Oilers, 5-0 on March 12, 1981, in Edmonton. That was 199 games ago.

Smith slid out to take the legs, and the puck, out from under Wayne Gretzky late in the period and then got help from defenceman Denis Potvin to prevent a goal seconds before Ken Morrow scored into an empty net with 12 seconds left to seal the victory. "I was just ready to put it in the net, I had it teed up as they say, and Potvin made a great play diving through the middle to tip it," Gretzky said of Potvin's deflection of the puck away from the New York crease.

The Islanders used Bryan Trottler and Butch Goring to shadow Gretzky most of the night. The Edmonton centre finished with six shots on goal and linemates Jari Kurri and Glenn Anderson had nine more.

Oilers still shaking heads at goaltending

EDMONTON (CP) — It was simply a case of too much Billy Smith, defenceman Kevin Lowe said after his Edmonton Oilers were shutout 3-0 by New York Islanders in the first game of the Stanley Cup final Tuesday night.

We played an excellent hockey game, Lowe said in a quiet Oilers dressing room, but so did Smith. It was as simple as that.

We don't have anything to be disappointed about, he said about a classic playoff clash that was in doubt until the final seconds.

Coach Glen Sather said he was proud of the effort put out by the Oilers in their first outing in a Cup final. Sather admitted the Oilers were a little tentative in the early going and were caught standing around during four fruitless power plays, but said I'm proud of the way they played. We did everything but score.

Defenceman Randy Gregg said the Islanders were fortunate to get an early goal that allowed them to sit back and play a defensive game.

The Islanders did a good job, Gregg said, but a defensive posture eventually creates some opportunities for the opposing team and we played a lot of the game in their end.

The Oilers finished with a 35-24 edge in shots on goal but Smith and a couple of goalposts kept them off the scoresheet.

We had 10 or 15 good scoring chances, it just didn't go in, said forward Ken Linseman.

One of their best chances came seconds before the Islanders got their second goal when New York defenceman Denis Potvin dived to deflect the puck away from Wayne Gretzky at the edge of the crease.

"I was just ready to put it in the net and I had it teed up, as they say, and Potvin made a great play diving through the middle to tip it," Gretzky told a post-game news conference after he quickly left the Oilers dressing room.

Lowe gave credit to the Islanders for shutting down the vaunted Oiler offensive punch, which has produced more than 490 goals so far this season. They're pretty intelligent, they know what to do, Lowe said, adding that the Islanders didn't pull any surprises out of the hat.

It was a great hockey game, you can expect that sort of game for the rest of the series.

We just have to keep shooting, they've got to go in sometime, said forward Jay Cote, who was scheduled to play a checking role against Mike Bossy. But the Islanders big scorer, with 15 goals so far in the playoffs, sat out the game with a severe case of tonsillitis.

Sather gave Smith, who now has allowed just one goal in his last three Cup final games, his due as a great goaltender.

But we're a great scoring team and we'll just have to keep doing the same thing we've always done.

Arbour wouldn't disagree with Smith today

EDMONTON (CP) Billy Smith calls himself a money goaltender and New York coach Al Arbour wasn't about to dispute that claim Tuesday night after the feisty Islanders netminder shutout Edmonton Oilers 3-0 in the first game of the Stanley Cup final.

"The performance of Billy Smith in goal tonight was extraordinary," said Arbour after watching Smith kick out 35 Edmonton shots.

"He's done this time and time again in the Stanley Cup playoffs and he certainly came up with a great performance tonight."

Smith, who has allowed just one goal in his last three Stanley Cup final appearances, gave much of the credit to his defence.

"I think it was a good performance for me but it was a great performance by my defencemen," he said. "And the forwards came back. Anytime you get a shutout it's an all-round effort, it's not just one guy."

For the Oilers, who scored a record 424 goals in the regular season, the shutout was the first they have suffered since March 12, 1981 when Smith shut them out 5-0 in Edmonton.

Duane Sutter, early in the first period, and Ken Morrow, into an empty net in the closing seconds, scored for the Islanders, who played without high-scoring right winger Mike Bossy. Bossy, who leads playoff goal scorers with 15, had to be scratched from the lineup after he came down with a bout of tonsillitis.

His absence was felt by the Islanders, who had few good scoring opportunities but instead relied on strong forechecking and good defence for the win.

"Mike adds so many dimensions to our game," said centre Bryan Trottier.

"They (the Oilers) had us on our heels the whole night."

Arbour seemed relieved to have escaped with the victory, which now gives New York the home-ice advantage in the best-of-seven National Hockey League championship.

"We scratched, we clawed, we did everything we had to do," said Arbour. "I think the effort was there... but I know our club can skate much better and get into the flow and the pattern much better than we did tonight."

Arbour said the absence of Bossy changed the Islanders game plan, as they elected to play a more defensive game.

"We went from Plan A to Plan B in a hurry," said Arbour. Butch Goring, who spent much of the night shadowing Wayne Gretzky, said the Islanders were fortunate to escape with the victory. "We were a little bit sluggish out there," said Goring. "Smith played terrific. There's no question he was the difference."

Game two of the series goes Thursday night in Edmonton and Goring said the win transfers the pressure to the Oilers shoulders.

"Game one is always an important one and we certainly have to feel good about winning it."

Intimidation won't be part of game plan

PORTLAND, Ore. (CP) — Coach Paul Theriault of Oshawa doesn't think intimidation will put his Generals in the Memorial Cup final.

Oshawa defeated Verdun Juniors 5-1 Tuesday night in a preview of Thursday's semifinal game. There were 40 penalties for 141 minutes.

"Verdun won quite handsily in the Quebec League," said Theriault. "I don't think intimidation is a very sound game plan."

"We were a better team tonight than Verdun, but we'll have to prove again Thursday that we're the better team."

The Generals from the Ontario Hockey League spent much of the night trying to soften up the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League team. The Juniors were short several players because of illness.

There were four fights, the first outbreak of major penalties in the six round-robin games.

"It's been our observation that Verdun has a lot of speed," added Theriault. "If you give them the ice, they're going to burn you."

"The reason we're here is because we're a good checking team. When you play a team like that, if you don't finish your checks and cut their ice down, they're going to beat you."

"That means being physical on the puck, physical along the boards and in the corners. If we're not going to beat them in the middle, we have to beat them along the boards and in the corners."

Theriault had the game videotaped and will address his game plan for the semifinal from the replay.

Coach Pierre Cremer said his declimated lineup should be stronger come Thursday. He isn't worried about a physical semifinal.

"We beat teams all year in our league who tried to put us out with hecking," Cremer said. "We'll concentrate on scoring more goals Thursday."

The Generals were blanked on the power play by Verdun on four attempts after Oshawa scored eight power-play goals in two previous games. Greg Gravel, Dave Gans, Todd Hooey, John MacLean and Todd Charlesworth scored against the Juniors.

Oshawa got a brilliant game in goal from Peter Sidorkiewicz, who rebounded from 10 goals against in the previous game and stopped 35 Verdun shots, including two breakaways by Jacques Sylvestre.

Pat Lafontaine scored for the Juniors after going to hospital earlier in the day for injections to control his allergies.

Captain Joe Cirella of the Generals said Verdun appeared not to be interested in the last game of round robin, while Oshawa "goes out to win every game we play, which we showed tonight."

Portland, and Oshawa finished the round robin with 2-1 records, but the Winter Hawks advanced to Saturday's final by beating Oshawa 10-5. Verdun, and Lethbridge Broncos were 1-2, with the Juniors beating Lethbridge 4-3 to gain third place.

Lethbridge was the Western Hockey League championship team and Portland gained a berth in the tournament as the host team.

Players from all four teams were to attend tonight's Canadian Major Junior Hockey League awards banquet for the presentation of the player of the year award. The finalists were Lafontaine, Doug Gilmour of the OHL Cornwall Royals and Dean Evason of the WHL Kamloops Oilers.

MEET THE SKEENA MOLSON KINGS

Clint Marshall

Height: 6'1" Weight: 195
Bats: Right Throws: Right

Now entering his fourth year with the club, Skeena Molson Kings pitcher Clint Marshall is looking to get back on the championship trail this season. The Kings' second place finish in last year's Sr. 'A's represented one of the few times in Clint's fastball career that the club he was playing for did not come out on top in its league or province.

Going as far back as his minor softball days in Alberta when his teams won five consecutive provincial championships at various age levels, it becomes fairly obvious that Clint is not accustomed to losing. Also included in his string of championships are an Alberta Junior title in 1975 (his club finished second in the Canadians that year), a senior A title in 1978 with Fort McMurray, and of course Provincial and Western Canadian Senior 'B' championships with the Kings in 1980 and 1981.

As well as many team successes, Clint's list of individual achievements is equally impressive. 1975-76 All-Star outfielder in Western Major Fastball League, 1978-79 All-Star pitcher in Alberta Sr. 'A' championships, 1979 All-Star outfielder at the World Series of Fastball.

One would think that after spending hundreds of hours over eight months of the year practising and playing fastball Clint might be looking for a little time off from the sporting world over the winter months, but not so: he is also the Referee in Chief for the Terrace Minor Hockey Association, no part time job for him. In his spare time, whenever that is, he enjoys both cross-country and downhill skiing. Championship experience is an important ingredient to building a winning team, and as long as Clint Marshall is a Molson King that is one ingredient the club is not likely to run short of.

Expos beaten 4-2

McMurtry luckier than Sanderson Tuesday

Atlanta's Craig McMurtry went 2-3 in his second start without being tagged for a hit. Montreal's Scott Sanderson wasn't so lucky. McMurtry, a rookie right-hander, had Atlanta fans thinking no-hitter before yielding.

"The hit was no big deal," said McMurtry, now 4-1. "I made a bad pitch to Carter. I made a mistake pitch and he hit it."

Carter's double off the centre-field wall barely eluded Brett Butler's grasp. McMurtry, who pitched out of first-inning trouble caused by a walk and an error and then retired 20 straight batters before Carter's hit, left the game in the eighth after surrendering two runs on three more hits.

In other NL games, it was: Philadelphia 3, Cincinnati 1; San Diego 4, Pittsburgh 1; Chicago 3, Los Angeles 2; St. Louis 8, San Francisco 4; and Houston 5, New York 4, in 11 innings.

Atlanta's ballpark, known as a paradise for slugfests, was the scene of a real brawl in the sixth inning when Claudell Washington charged to the mound after a brushback pitch from Sanderson.

Television replays appeared to locate Washington landed a punch before being pulled away as both benches emptied.

Washington, who had homered in the first inning, was ejected while Sanderson stayed in the game.

Last week, in a game in Montreal, Washington spiked Sanderson during a play at first base. Sanderson received six stitches and missed his next start. Television replays appeared to locate Washington landed a punch before being pulled away as both benches emptied.

Washington, who helped lead the Reds to consecutive World Series triumphs in the 1970s, tripled in two first-inning runs after getting a warm greeting.

Carlton became only the third pitcher in history to reach the 3,500-strikeout plateau. He fanned seven, running his major league-leading total to 70 this season and his lifetime count to 3,504. Only Houston's Nolan Ryan (3,521) and Walter Johnson (3,508) have fanned more.

Carlton allowed five hits in improving his record to 5-2. Denny Walling's bases-loaded single with one out in the bottom of the 11th inning was the difference. Mets reliever Neil Allen, struggling with problems on the field and off, took the loss and fell to 0-4.

Phil Garner tripled in two runs during Houston's four-run eighth as the Astros overcame a 4-0 New York lead for the second straight night. Hubie Brooks delivered two run-scoring singles for the Mets.

Padres 4 Pirates 1. Andy Hawkins threw a three-hitter to cool off the hot-hitting Pirates, who had banged out 10 hits in a 14-inning victory over San Diego the night before.

Two veteran left-handers, Frank Tanana and Bill Travers, showed Tuesday they still have something to offer American League baseball.

Tanana, trying to overcome three consecutive losing records, checked New York on one hit in 41-3 innings of scoreless relief Tuesday night and was credited with the victory as Texas Rangers defeated the Yankees 4-2.

Tanana has pitched 112-3 innings this season in four relief appearances without allowing a run, while yielding only five hits.

Travers, who had pitched 92-3 innings for California since he signed a free-agent contract following his 1980 season with Milwaukee, pitched for the first time since May 5, 1981, following two shoulder operations. He went five innings, allowing seven hits and five runs (only three earned) as the Angels nipped Boston Red Sox 6-5.

Elsewhere in the AL, Baltimore walloped Seattle 13-2, Cleveland downed Kansas City 4-1, Milwaukee defeated Minnesota 4-1 and Detroit edged Oakland 4-3. Chicago and Toronto were not scheduled.

Texas managed only four hits, but took advantage of two errors on plays at the plate by New York catcher Butch Wynegar to score three unearned runs. George Wright had a run-scoring single and Wayne Tolleason hit a sacrifice fly, but Tanana was the hero of the night for Texas.

"The toughest thing is getting the adrenaline going when the stupid phone rings," said Tanana, who had relieved only 12 times in 283 appearances before this season.

Rod Carew, hobbling on sore legs, led off California's ninth inning with a pinch double and scored on a single by Juan Beniquez to give the Angels their triumph over the Red Sox. Carew, the AL batting leader at .476, did not start for the third game in a row because of knee and ankle problems.

But he doubled for his 2,721st career hit, moving him into a tie with Lou Gehrig for 34th place among Hawkins raised his record to 2-1 with his second complete game.

Steve Garvey's single strapped a 1-1 tie in the seventh inning and Terry Kennedy followed with a two-run double, upping his NL-leading RBI total to 28.

Cubs 3 Dodgers 2. Reliever Mike Proly, summoned when starter Paul Moskau ran into first-inning trouble, pitched 5 2-3 strong innings and Lee Smith finished up with three perfect innings as Chicago broke the Dodgers' six-game winning streak.

Los Angeles scored twice in the first on run-scoring singles by Dusty Baker and Greg Brock before Proly came in. He allowed two hits in his stint and then Smith came on for his fourth save.

Larry Bowa's run-scoring single in the fifth inning snapped a 2-2 tie. Cardinals 8 Giants 4. Darrell Porter drilled a three-run homer in the first inning and added a two-run blast in the sixth as St. Louis ended the Giants' six-game victory string.

Tommy Herr, playing his 337th game in the majors, smacked a two-run shot for his first career homer as the Cardinals snapped their four-game losing streak. Reliever John Stuper escaped from bases-loaded jams in the fifth and seventh innings to get the win.

Johnnie LeMaster and Jeff Leonard homered for San Francisco.

Tanana, Travers are still useful AL pitchers baseball's all-time leaders. Carew also has a chance for another little-known record. The double was his

North York leads 2-0

TORONTO (CP) — North York Rangers scored three unanswered goals in the third period to break a 5-5 deadlock and defeat Abbotsford Flyers 8-5 in a Centennial Cup final series game Tuesday.

The victory gives the Rangers a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series for the national championship of Tier 2 junior hockey.

The Flyers, champions of the British Columbia Junior Hockey League, led 3-2 at the end of a tight first period but the teams ended the second in a 5-5 tie.

In the third period, John Ricketts, Dave Newsom, with his second goal of the game, and Tom Van Natter scored to give the Rangers the victory.

Don McLaughlin scored the other four goals for the Ontario Junior Hockey League champions.

Rob Longfellow, Bill Shibley, Colin Melness, Dwight Mathison and Darren Harris scored for the Flyers.

The third game of the series is scheduled for Thursday in suburban North York.

Mullins quits

VANCOUVER (CPX) — Knee problems are ending the 20-year basketball coaching career of Peter Mullins at the University of B.C.

Mullins, a rangy native of Australia, directed the Thunderbirds to two national championships and seven Western Conference titles.

But his knee problems are making it impossible to stand through the hours of workouts.

Mullins, known for teams which relied heavily on the fast break and sped the tempo of a game by frequently pressing the opposition, also was national coach from 1969 to 1971. During that time, he coached teams in the world championships and the Pan-American Games.

You were asking...

...about the Kemano Completion Project. This is one of a series of answers from Alcan people to questions about plans for the project asked by residents of the Northwest.

Q...When are you going to start? Why doesn't Alcan go ahead with the project right away?

A...A start-up date hasn't been set because the project is still in the planning stage. Alcan is working with local residents and with all three levels of government to make sure the proposed project fits in with development and environmental goals in the Northwest. Alcan has accepted a smaller project than originally planned in order to protect fishery resources and to provide enough water for other economic users. Before any decision can be made, Alcan must prepare assessments of the probable social, environmental and economic effects of the project, and comply with the requirements of the Utilities Commission Act. The B.C. Utilities Commission must examine Alcan's proposal, and this will include public hearings. All of this takes time, but it's essential to make sure everyone has an opportunity to be heard.

YOUR INDIVIDUAL HOROSCOPE

FOR THURSDAY, MAY 12, 1983

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

ARIES

(Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You'll make important decisions affecting your financial interests. Your judgment is shrewd. It's a good time to negotiate.

TAURUS

(Apr. 20 to May 20) You have a knack for getting along with young people today. Things go pretty much your way in most areas of life.

GEMINI

(May 21 to June 20) You'll find the solutions to many problems that have troubled you. Don't talk too much. Keep important ideas to yourself.

CANCER

(June 21 to July 22) Be sure to socialize today. Expect some stimulating exchanges of ideas. Participate in club activities. Express your views.

LEO

(July 23 to Aug. 22) Career interests are highlighted. Ask for raises and make presentations. Mixing business and pleasure, though, is not advised.

VIRGO

(Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Today you feel you have all the answers. Intellectual work and business discussions go well. Others listen, if you're not too critical.

LIBRA

(Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) The accent is on investments, loans and mortgages. Arrange meetings with financial consultants. Discuss joint aims with partners.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You'll certainly be able to clear up any misunderstandings with close ties. Loved ones make important plans for the future.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Discuss career goals with higher-ups. Job hunters make valuable contacts. It's the perfect time for medical check-ups.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Stress reason rather than emotion in dealings with romantic interests. It's a time when people can really get to know each other.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Make important home decisions. Whether it's a party or redecorating, this is the day for plans centering on domestic interests.

PISCES

(Feb. 19 to Mar. 20) Pick up the phone and make those important calls. Mental rapport is easily established now. You pursue a creative interest.

YOU BORN TODAY are creative and intellectual. You have a flair for communicating your ideas and will have success in some speaking or writing occupation. Though you have the ability to commercialize your artistic talents, at times you need to exercise care in the handling of your finances. You're a better manager for others than for yourself. Always keep a definite goal in mind and avoid a tendency to scatter your energies. Birthdate of: Burt Bacharach, composer; Steve Winwood, rock musician; and George Carlin, comedian.

Prayer power

I am writing about the recent letter from the Flasher. I, too, would like to cast my vote for prayer. After 17 years as an active bisexual I made a mess of my marriage and my business. Psychiatrists, psychologists and hypnoses were of no help. I turned to God in desperation. Prayer worked for me. So please, Ann, include it in your list of possible solutions for people who have soured up their lives. No name. Thanks for the testimonial. It has worked for me, too. And to those who scoff I say if you haven't tried it, don't knock it.

Budgets based on recovery

The provincial treasurers of Ontario and Quebec are pinning their hopes for economic recovery on a few breaks for the business community, a few jobs for their unemployed citizens and a few extra dollars from their taxpayers.

Echong federal Finance Minister Marc Lalonde, both presented budgets Tuesday in which they called on the private sector to lead the way out of the recession and offered some incentives to businessmen but few concessions to consumers.

Ontario Treasurer Frank Miller announced a "social services maintenance tax" — a temporary surcharge of five per cent on the provincial income tax. But he offered no guarantee that he will rescind the tax when it expires in 18 months or that all the money would be used for social programs.

Similar surcharges are in effect in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

Unlike New Brunswick and Alberta, which have imposed user fees for some hospital services, Miller chose to cope with rising medical costs by adding a five-per-cent increase in Ontario Health Insurance Plan premiums.

The Ontario treasurer also boosted tobacco and alcohol taxes, tacking 15 cents on the price of a package of 20 cigarettes, an average 20 cents on the cost of a bottle of liquor, 10 cents for most wines and 30 cents for a 24-bottle case of beer.

Quebec Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau spared the smokers and beer drinkers but allowed grocery store owners to set their own profit margins on wine sales, with the government figuring to collect its share of any markups.

Parizeau reduced indexation of the personal income tax exemption to five per cent from 7.5 per cent, bringing it below the current inflation rate. As of Jan. 1, Quebec's basic exemption is $5,290.

However, he promised Quebecers, the most highly taxed citizens of Canada, a "very definite" income tax cut next year. Like Lalonde in his federal budget three weeks ago, both ministers announced job creation programs.

Miller allocated $142.3 million to a variety of projects to provide short-term work for about 53,000 unemployed Ontario residents and said tax-relief measures for small businesses should create thousands of additional jobs. Parizeau proposed a $235-million investment to find employment for 50,000 jobless Quebecers.

Ontario's unemployment rate is 11.7 per cent and Quebec's is 14.4, compared with a national average of 12.5.

Despite their conservative approach, Miller and Parizeau bowed to the inevitable, budgeting for a modest increase in their provincial deficits.

Miller projected a $2.695 billion shortfall for the 1983-84 fiscal year, up from $2.546 billion in 1982-83. Parizeau estimated that Quebec's deficit will rise to $3.185 billion from $3.135 billion.

Ontario lifted the seven-per-cent sales tax on household furniture and appliances for 90 days and Quebec gave a boost to the same industry by permitting consumers to use money in Registered Home Ownership Savings Plans to buy new furniture and appliances.

Miller continued an exemption from corporation income tax for small businesses for a third year and permitted them to carry non-capital losses back three years and forward seven years.

A three-year carry back of net capital losses will go into effect immediately for small businessmen, fishermen and farmers in Ontario and will be phased in for other businesses over the next two years.

Miller also removed the sales tax on heavy transportation vehicles, trucks and trailers, expanded current exemptions from the tax on production machinery and equipment and exempted tools used to repair and maintain them.

First-time farmers in Ontario will receive an interest-rate subsidy of up to five percentage points on eligible loans.

Parizeau increased tax deductions for Quebecers investing in small and medium-sized companies, exempted residents working abroad for Canadian companies from income tax and offered a 10-per-cent tax credit to companies for their research and development payroll costs.

The Quebec minister also offered a $2,000 grant to anyone purchasing a new home before Jan. 1, 1984, and reduced electricity rates by as much as 50 per cent for new industrial users with high consumption, such as aluminum plants.

The minister said the newspaper may have conveyed "the gist" of his budget but that the information could not have been used to anyone's advantage. However, he was left with a "moral issue" which he planned to consider in private.

Reagan package short $60

WASHINGTON (AP) — A compromise El Salvador aid package approved by the Senate foreign relations committee leaves President Reagan $60 million short of what he says is needed to help the Salvadoran army combat leftist insurgents.

"What it does is increase the risk that the (administration's) program won't succeed," said William Schneider, undersecretary of state for security assistance, after Tuesday's vote.

However, Schneider commended the committee "for its progress" in granting additional money.

The committee approved a compromise that would set U.S. military aid to El Salvador at $76.3 million for fiscal 1983, which ends Sept. 30.

The plan is subject to approval by the Senate and House of Representatives. The amount includes only $60 million of the $110 million in extra aid Reagan sought to add to the $26.3 million approved by Congress last year.

However, the extra $50 million is $20 million more than has thus far been approved by the House appropriations committee for fiscal 1983.

The House foreign affairs committee has approved a fiscal 1984 military aid package of $50 million. But Representative Michael Barnes (D-Md.), chairman of the subcommittee on Latin America, said he thought the committee would restore some of the $36.3 million that was cut.

Under the Senate plan, the administration would be required to spend at least $20 million of the aid in each budget year to train Salvadoran troops.

No further details on the meeting were given. However, in another

Comet seen

NEW YORK (AP) — A faint, old comet that looked like a fuzzy patch of light to many sky watchers whizzed by Earth today at a distance of 4.8 million kilometres — the closest any comet has come since 1770.

Amateur and professional astronomers watched from rooftops and observatories Tuesday night as the newly discovered comet, dubbed IRAS-Araki-Alcock, moved through the heavens at more than 40 kilometres a second.

Clouds frustrated many watchers, but at the U.S. Naval Observatory in Washington the comet was seen through binoculars and small telescopes as a faint white cloud. "It looks like a blob or a blur," said Guy Moore, one of a group of 20 amateur astronomers who viewed the comet under Washington's clear skies.

Astronomers in Britain, Sweden and West Germany also reported sighting the comet as a patch of diffuse light spread over an area slightly larger than the apparent size of the moon.

IRAS-Araki Alcock should be visible through binoculars tonight from dark areas away from city lights and where skies are clear. It appears just beneath the cup of the Big Dipper.

Crombie fearless

Conservative leadership hopeful David Crombie said Tuesday he has no fear of running against John Turner if the former finance minister leads the Liberals in the next federal election.

"Quite frankly, I think I'm the one candidate who can beat John Turner in Ontario," Crombie told reporters in Winnipeg.

The former Toronto mayor has said the Progressive Conservatives must win 65 seats in Ontario to win the next election.

Turner, a Toronto businessman who led the federal cabinet in the mid-1970s, has been touted as a likely successor to Prime Minister Trudeau if Trudeau steps down before the next election. Trudeau has said several times he plans to retire before the next federal contest, although there have been hints he may change his mind.

Crombie said he was elected to the Commons by beating John Evans, "Trudeau's hand-picked man" and "the next John Turner" in 1978 in the Toronto riding of Rosedale. In Edmonton, Premier Peter Lougheed and his Alberta caucus were to meet with Joe Clark later in the day in the first of what is expected to be separate review sessions with all federal Progressive Conservative leadership hopefuls.

But spokesmen for Crombie and John Crosbie said they aren't bothered by the practice.

"There are certain acts of respect or whatever granted to a former prime minister," said Crosbie campaign manager John Laschinger. "That's fine."

Union man arrested

MONTREAL (CP) — Two members of Montreal's bus and subway maintenance union were arrested at an east-end garage today as a wildcat strike shut down mass transit in the city.

The illegal walkout caught many of the city's 600,000 bus and subway users off guard and caused massive traffic tie-ups on all major arteries into downtown.

A police spokesman said the arrested strikers were suspected of damaging transit commission property, but a commission spokesman did not know what damage had occurred.

Real Blain, a transit commission spokesman, said pickets were up around all bus garages. Blain said the picketers were threatening bus drivers, forcing them not to take their vehicles on the road.

The 4,200-member bus and subway drivers' union said Tuesday it would not cross picket lines set up by the maintenance workers' union.

Blain said buses from two garages had been out on their routes early in the morning, but were ordered back to the garages because full service could not be provided.

The maintenance workers voted to strike late Tuesday to protest the suspension of a colleague.

There were four partial or complete disruptions of the transit system last year, including one six-day shutdown in the bitter cold of January.

Since 1986, the system has been hit by 20 illegal and 14 legal strikes.

Transit commission chairman Lawrence Hanigan said he would seek a court injunction against the maintenance strike.

However, union leaders have defied court orders in previous disputes. Five leaders were sent to jail last year for flouting an injunction during 1982 disputes.

The latest battle started Tuesday when 400 workers in the main maintenance garage staged a wildcat strike to protest the suspension of one of their colleagues the day before.

Hanigan said the employee got a two-day suspension for insubordination when he left his job early to pass out time cards so that other workers could punch out more quickly at the end of their shift.

The employee, who had been warned before about the practice, was caught "fiddling" with the cards, Hanigan said.

At a meeting convened Tuesday evening by leaders of the 1,100-strong maintenance workers' union, the vote was 304 to 143 to extend the strike to all of the commission's garages today.

Maintenance union leader Jacques Morissette said the strike in the main garage resulted from the intransigence and harassment of foremen.

Mrs. King preaches

MONTREAL (CP) — Fifteen years after Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated, his widow still preaches the message of peace and non-violence for which her husband was awarded a Nobel Peace Prize.

"I know that we live in a violent world and the world is not suddenly going to become non-violent," Coretta Scott King said Tuesday at a news conference.

"But I don't think it's naive for people to hope and believe it's possible for peace to come about."

King was speaking to delegates to the northeastern regional meeting of the Child Welfare League of America.

Her Montreal visit came the same day many Canadian newspapers carried an open letter from Prime Minister Trudeau in which he said Canadians must let the United States test its cruise missile here because the U.S. protects Canada from the Soviet Union.

Trudeau was elected leader of the Liberal Party two days after King was murdered in Memphis, Tenn., on April 4, 1968.

But Coretta King, who served on the U.S. delegation to the United Nations, had a different message for Canadians: "We don't have any control over the Soviet Union here but I do think that the Soviet Union is not unkind of world opinion."

"We have to find a way to get our message through to the Soviet Union, we have to deal with the super powers but I don't believe we have to destroy ourselves."

She invited Canadians to participate in a massive demonstration in Washington, D.C., Aug. 27 to mark the 20th anniversary of the civil rights demonstration where her late husband told the world about his dream.

"The celebration will be the beginning of an accelerated non-violent campaign for jobs, peace and freedom. The number and variety of human rights organizations has multiplied since 1968 and we plan to unify all of these groups in the spirit of Martin's dream."

She insisted that world peace is possible. "There are enough people in the world including leaders who have a sense of humanity that we can rally around them and vote the others out of office."

But King said current levels of violence in the world have reached alarming proportions.

"We've gotten so accustomed to violence that we think it's something that has to be," she said. "It's time we did something about it."

"It's not just physical violence. It's the economic factors underlying it. We have to tie the peace issue to justice. We can't ignore the problems of human need."

Friends reunited

CLEVELAND (AP) — A Chinese farmer, tearfully reunited with former U.S. marines who informally adopted him more than 35 years ago, said he "prayed every night" to rejoin the men who once promised to bring him to America.

"Some nights I cried," said Cui Zhikui, now 49, nicknamed Charlie Two Shoes by the marines who befriended him in 1945 in northeastern China.

"All these years, I prayed every night," he said, hoping to see again the men he met while peddling peanuts and fresh eggs as a 12-year-old boy.

When he walked into the terminal of Cleveland's Hopkins International Airport on Tuesday night, Cui was greeted by a throng that included the family of Roy Sibit of Tallmadge, Ohio.

"Charlie was one of us marines," said Sibit, 54, who had slept in a bunk next to Cui's in 1947 and 1948. "He fixed his bunk, he went through inspections, he went to chow, then he went to school."

Sibit said Cui's family was very poor and lived in a mountain village, and that his father left him with the marines when he no longer could pay for schooling.

Cui, now a farmer, acquired the nickname Charlie Two Shoes because the marines couldn't pronounce his name, and "everybody calls everybody Charlie," Cui said.

When the last of the marines left in 1949, two months before the Communist takeover of the Chinese mainland, Cui asked the men to send for him. They promised they would.

"We just loved him," said William Bullard of Autryville, N.C. "We cut down uniforms and shoes to fit him. We all worked for him, and we all loved him."

In 1960, one year after Washington and Peking established diplomatic relations, Cui got a letter through to Bullard, who was still at the address Cui had memorized. "Do you remember your old buddy in China?" he asked. "Do you ever think of little Charlie?"

Excited by the letter, the marines lobbied for visas for Cui, his wife and three children. A philanthropist, Leon Toups of Houma, La., provided the $1,625 round-trip plane fare for the 24-hour flight from China.

China granted permission for the entire family to visit, but the U.S. government would allow only Cui to come on a six-month visa.

"The marines raised me as a boy," Cui said. "They were more than friends — they were like fathers and brothers."

Du Pont boasts about its job safety program

HULL, Que. (CP) — Du Pont has long been known for its efforts to promote job safety and the company had a chance Tuesday to boast about its success at the World Congress on the Prevention of Occupational Accidents and Diseases.

Ned K. Walters, director of safety and fire protection, said three of the company's plants in Britain, Argentina and Mexico have gone for 10 years with no lost work days due to job-related injuries.

"We have found achieving safe work places in the United States and overseas is not the result of good fortune, nor is it dependent on a secret formula," Walters told the six-day international forum. It is "directly related to developing and maintaining safety programs which put principles into action."

Du Pont, based in Wilmington, Del., started as a manufacturer of black powder nearly two centuries ago but now is best known for its synthetic fibres and a host of other chemical products. The company employs 143,000 workers world-wide, including Canada.

Its latest annual report to shareholders said the company had its best year for safety in 1982 with a record 40 times better than the U.S. chemical industry as a whole and 100 times better than all U.S. industries.

Du Pont employees have long received "safety prizes" for good records achieved by their individual plants and plants take pride in publicizing the number of weeks, months or years without serious injuries or work-related illnesses.

Walters said one of the principles guiding the company's safety program is that all accidents can be prevented and all illnesses can be contained.

"Setting your goal on anything short of the elimination of injuries and illnesses suggests that there is an acceptable level."

Walters said safety is the responsibility of everyone in charge, from the chief executive officer to supervisors working directly with employees at every work site.

Similarly, he said, safety is considered a condition of employment, and all employees are expected to take a personal responsibility for safe working conditions.

Among other things, that means employees are involved in safety programs and often propose solutions to problems that arise.

"We have learned from experience that employees will respect the safety and health program and accept safety as a condition of employment when it is clear that management regards safety as equal in importance to production, quality and cost control."

Du Pont has marketed what it calls its "balanced approach" to job safety to several hundred customers. Impressive results, Walters said.

"Those with the strongest commitment and the most consistent, thorough application of the balanced approach show a 45-per-cent decrease in lost work-day cases in the first year and a 75-per-cent reduction in the second."

The congress, the first of its kind held outside Europe, continues through Friday for more than 1,500 delegates from 82 countries.

WHO doctor calls abortion extermination

REGINA (CP) — There's nothing therapeutic in medical terms about a therapeutic abortion, Dr. William Lilley, a World Health Organization consultant, said Tuesday.

"It's not a termination of the pregnancy," he told a court in which Canada's abortion law is being challenged. "It's the extermination of the baby."

Lilley, a non-Catholic who is a member of the Pontifical Academy of Sciences in Rome, testified for five hours on the nature of birth and the growth of an embryo into a baby. He was called by Morris Shumilatcher, a prominent Regina civil rights lawyer, who is acting for Joe Borowski, an anti-abortionist.

The Borowski challenge of the 1969 amendments to the Criminal Code of Canada which made therapeutic abortions legal is expected to be a landmark case.

Borowski has raised about $250,000 for legal fees, but expects it will cost about $750,000 before the matter is settled by the Supreme Court of Canada.

Court of Queen's Bench Justice W.R. Matheson allowed vivid color slides of a healthy and an aborted eight-week-old fetus as evidence.

A few of the 25 spectators in the courtroom groaned as the slide of the aborted fetus flashed on the screen.

Lilley described the slide in a monotone: "A macabre jigsaw puzzle. The eye has been fragmented; the brain is to the left; rib cage obliterated; arms and legs crushed."

He sat virtually motionless all day with his hands clasped on his lap while testifying that an unborn child or fetus has individual characteristics.

Some have been known to cry, develop a sweet tooth if the amniotic fluid is injected with a saccharine solution and can be startled, he said.

Lilley, knighted for his medical work, said a baby inside the mother's womb can and should receive medical diagnosis just like any other human being.

Shumilatcher then asked him to define a human being. "It's a life-inhabiting, intact, human organism," replied Lilley.

If a mother wants to keep her baby, the doctor said medicine has progressed to the point to allow her to do so, no matter what ailment she may be suffering.

Lilley has been credited for refining amniocentesis, the process of testing the amniotic fluid which surrounds the unborn child.

He said there are hazards to abortions. A patient can hemorrhage, tissue may be damaged and become infected. Long-term problems include infertility and repeated miscarriages.

Edward Sojony, a lawyer who specializes in civil and corporate litigation for the federal government, did not interrupt Shumilatcher once as he questioned Lilley.

On the opening day of the trial, Sojony repeatedly objected to Shumilatcher's questions and plan of attack.

Sojony said the issue is not over "the meaning of life" but rather which act of Parliament takes precedence. Shumilatcher will argue the Bill of Rights and the new Charter of Rights and Freedoms in the 1982 Canada Act prevails over section 261 of the Criminal Code, the abortion section.

Section 7 of the Charter says everyone has the right to life, liberty, security of person and the right not to be deprived of the same except by due process. But the point at issue in this case is whether that right can be applied to the unborn.

The case is expected to last a month.

All About PEOPLE

Vancouver Mayor Mike Harcourt dipped into his own pocket to help a local artist pay the city $376 in parking tickets.

Chris August, the artist cum parking fiend, came up with a novel way to pay the tickets — an art auction with the proceeds going to the city's coffers.

Harcourt had promised to help promote the event after he turned down the artist's offer of free paintings for the city's art bank in return for a parking pardon.

The mayor ended up paying $350 for an original of two swimmers which the artist described as "symbolic of the hectic chase that exists in modern society." The sale raised a total of $1,250.

"The very fact that my parking tickets became a media event could help the public to start associating my name with my art," August said.

Some "basically interesting" people, including pop stars, actors, racing drivers, and cricket players, were among British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's guests at a gala reception at her Downing Street residence after she announced she had called an election for June 9.

Rock star Adam Faith, world ice-skating champions Christopher Dean and Jane Torville, actors from some of Thatcher's favorite television shows, and Bob Willis, captain of Britain's national cricket team, mingled over drinks and snacks with businessmen, doctors, and voluntary workers.

A spokesman for Thatcher said the party was for "a wide range of people who are basically interesting and who've done well."

Telly Savalas, who starred as television's Kojak, is back on the airwaves promoting the charms of Duluth, Minn.

In a 30-second commercial he wrote and performed for free, Savalas, 59, delivers a testimonial to the city of 100,000 that overlooks Lake Superior.

The Duluth Convention and Visitors Bureau wants $80 million in tourist business this year and hopes the commercials will help them achieve this goal.

Why is Savalas such a fan of Duluth? His girlfriend, Julie Hoyland, is a native.

Tuanhai (Cookie) Wilson, wife of comedian Flip Wilson, is in good condition after suffering multiple injuries in a balloon accident.

Mrs. Wilson, 33, broke several bones after the balloon she was riding in crashed in a wildlife preserve near the Nebraska-Missouri border. Her husband Flip was flying in another balloon that landed safely about 40 kilometres away.

Police said the balloon hit the ground, bounced back up and then came down very hard. Pilot Nikki Caplan was in hospital with an injured back.

Rev. George Pearson's wife didn't like his new beard, so she put it to a vote of his congregation — and lost by a whisker.

Pearson, of Stafford, Va., took a shine to his full beard, but his wife, Dottie, thought he looked better with shiny cheeks and chin.

Members of the youth fellowship at St. Matthias United Methodist Church, where Pearson is pastor, decided to help solve the dilemma.

For a month, at the end of each Sunday service, they collected penny votes for and against the beard. Pearson won by a tally of 98 to 72. The money will go toward youth fellowship projects.

"I thought it was funny at first," Pearson said, "but the more I got into it, the more I realized I didn't want to shave it off. I was really sweating it out."

Search continues

VANCOUVER (CP) — RCMP renewed their search today for a young Port Coquitlam, B.C., couple missing since Saturday on a one-day trip up the Fraser Canyon.

Randy Shore, 23, and his wife Kathy, 30, were reported missing Sunday night by their babysitter when they failed to return home from what was supposed to be a Saturday rendezvous with friends at a wilderness cabin and a river rafting trip on Sunday.

RCMP said Tuesday their ground and air searches had found no trace yet of the Shores or their camper van.

Stanley Shore, Randy's father, and his wife, Kay, are desperately hoping their son and daughter-in-law are not the victims of a replay of last August's slaying of six people near Clewwater, B.C.

"That's certainly in the back of our minds," he said. "But it's just impossible to guess what happened to them."

The bodies of Bob and Jackie Johnson of Kelowna, their daughters Janet and Karen, and Edith and George Bentley of Port Coquitlam were eventually found in the burned-out wreck of the Johnsons' car on the edge of Wells Gray Park. The Bentleys' camper van has not been found.

Randy and Kathy Shore were headed for a cabin on Turnip Lake, north of Lytton.

"A bunch of their friends went up there Friday night," said Stanley Shore, who last talked to his son on Friday.

"Randy and his wife were going to rendezvous with them Saturday around suppertime, and they were going on one of those guided raft trips on Sunday. I know they were looking forward to it."

Shore said he and his wife have dismissed the possibility that Randy and Kathy simply decided to disappear.

"I've completely outlawed the view that they've taken off," he said. "They both have jobs here, they have two children at home, and it just wouldn't be their nature to do that."

Trade discussed

PARIS (Reuter) — The United States will suggest new ways of expanding world trade at the conclusion today of six days of international ministerial conferences, western monetary sources said.

The U.S. proposals will be presented at a meeting of finance and trade officials from Canada and the six other countries attending a summit in Williamsburg, Va., this month, they said.

The suggestions follow a resolution passed in Paris on Tuesday by 24 non-Communist industrialized countries to move toward sustained, non-inflationary economic growth as a means of reducing unemployment and ending the world recession.

Finance and foreign ministers have been attending the Paris gathering, the largest ever convened by the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development.

The sources said the tone of today's discussions would hinge on the outcome of a controversial dinner hosted Tuesday night by U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige outlined U.S. thinking on trade when he called on the ministers at the conference for an immediate expansion of international markets.

The United States and other countries could benefit from the prospects of real growth to roll back protectionism and buy more, he said.

Baldrige said the Americans are risking a $50-billion trade deficit this year with this policy.

Terrace's empty buildings have new occupants

Proposed Mexican restaurant (above) and police building (below).

Herald Staff Writer

TERRACE— One, perhaps two, of Terrace's vacant stores will soon be occupied again.

In perhaps only two weeks, the town will gain a new restaurant. "Don Diego's" Mexican restaurant will soon open in the old Daily Herald-Clothing Warehouse location next to the Sternwheeler.

It is owner Dick Davis' first business venture in B.C. The establishment, which has been completely remodeled, will seat about 45 patrons. The meals will cost between $4 and $10.

Davis has noted the increasing popularity of Mexican food, especially in Terrace. He says local supermarkets have expanded the brand names of Mexican food they sell and still find it difficult to keep up with the demand.

"Don Diego's" will definitely not be a fast food joint. At first it will not be open for lunch, but will serve dinner only. Later, perhaps, Davis will seek out the luncheon crowd. In the beginning, the new restaurant will employ four people and that number will increase when the switch to serving lunch is made.

The two week opening date is tentative due to a delay in having chairs shipped from Montreal. Everything else should be in place by that time.

Beer, wine and tequila (not necessarily all at once) are traditional with Mexican fare. Davis is presently seeking a liquor license to serve such beverages with meals only.

For those who have enjoyed the food of the American southwest, Baja, and old Mexico "Don Diego's" will be a welcome addition to treats for their palate.

The second building that may soon be back in use is the former site of Western Home Furnishings. It could be Terrace's new RCMP building.

That bit of news raised some controversy at Monday night's council meeting.

The Terrace detachment of the RCMP have been looking for a new location for some time. Recently, police building experts visited Terrace and toured several possibilities. The experts recommended conversion of the Western Home Furnishings building.

That single recommendation did not please Alderman Chub Down.

He wants tenders submitted from many building owners whether or not their properties are suitable. Clerk-administrator Bob Hallor informed Down the police sent the standards. Down replied, "I disagree."

When Down continued to press for open tenders from anyone, Hallor told him "one of the other buildings would have to be rebuilt from the ground up." Down answered, "I don't know that." Hallor responded the experts had said so. David Gellately pointed out the police have very strict requirements for buildings due the need for cells, etc., and even have a specialized division to assess possible buildings to remodel. It was this division, according to Gellately, that had chosen the Western Home Furnishings site.

Upon questioning from Alan Soutar the public learned if the remodeling work is done by the building's owner, then the city is not involved for it. But Hallor later said the city would be committed to 40 per cent of the cost and has the final say on the matter.

By a four-to-one vote, Rugg Holdings will be advised that Terrace is interested in the conversion possibility of the location. Down was opposed; Gordon Galbraith was absent.

Towards the end of the council meeting, Soutar requested the head of the police inspection team write city hall and explain the specific items in detail that led to the choosing of this particular location.

Liberal fundraisers convicted

HALIFAX (CP)—Two former fund-raisers for the Nova Scotia Liberal party were convicted today of conspiring to sell Liberal government influence while Gerald Regan was premier between 1970-78.

The two will be sentenced at 10 a.m. ADT Thursday.

The decision by the 11 jurors came in the third day of deliberations following a month-long Supreme Court trial which gave Nova Scotians an inside view of the usually private world of political money-raising.

Senator Irvine Barrow, a Halifax accountant appointed to the Senate in 1974, and Charles MacFadden, a former vice-president of National Sea Products, were charged following an RCMP investigation into dealings between the Liberal party and 20 companies, mostly distillers.

High-profile defence lawyers J.J. Robinette and Austin Cooper, both of Toronto, called no witnesses. Both said the Crown had failed to provide any evidence to justify the conspiracy charges.

Neither Barrow nor MacFadden denied approaching companies which were doing — or hoped to do — business with the province and asking for donations to the Liberal party. However, the defence lawyers argued neither man attached any promise of having influence with the government.

That contention was backed up by former premier Regan, now minister of international trade in the federal cabinet.

Regan, one of two former Liberal premiers to testify, said he had known Barrow for 30 years. He said he took advice from the senator but Barrow never attempted to influence government policy.

B.C. students exams compulsory

VICTORIA (CP)—More than 150,000 students will sit down next month to write the first compulsory province-wide achievement exams in B.C. in more than a decade.

The Education Ministry already has sent the exams to the province's 75 school districts, along with manuals for the teachers' to use, and scoring samples so every child across B.C. will be marked as uniformly as possible.

The examinations will be given to children in Grade 3 (math), Grade 4 (reading), Grade 7 (math and reading), Grade 10 (math), and Grade 12 (composition, algebra and chemistry).

Jerry Mussio, executive director of school programs, said Tuesday all children should know their results on the exams by the end of the school year in June, and teachers are expected to use the results as "an added piece of information" in determining a child's final grade for the year.

In no case are the exams to be used "on a strict pass-fail basis for the whole year," he said.

All the items on the tests come from old exams or previous province-wide achievement tests, he said, and that has made it possible to determine in advance how well the average student should do on each test.

With the help of panels of teachers in each subject, the ministry has drawn up schedules to help teachers translate the numerical scores received on the tests into letter grades.

All the questions in Grades 3, 4, 7 and 10 will be multiple-choice, which makes the test easy to grade uniformly, Mussio said. In Grade 12, the algebra test has some problem-solving questions, and the English test consists of the writing of a short composition.

These are harder to mark uniformly, Mussio said, but the ministry has sent samples of possible essays out along with grading schedules to keep things as even as possible.

He said schools have been given discretion to exempt the scholarship students in Grade 12, who are also writing provincial scholarship exams during the same time the achievement tests are to be written, from the easier tests. Elementary and Grade 10 students will write their exams between June 8 and June 24. All the Grade 12 exams will be written between June 13 and June 17.

Diaries' reporter reveals source

BONN (Reuter)—The West German reporter who discovered the forged Hitler diaries says he obtained them from a Stuttgart dealer using the name Konrad Fischer.

Gerd Heidemann, dismissed by the news magazine Stern on Tuesday, said Tuesday night the man telephoned him Monday, claiming to speak from an Eastern European country and confessing that he had lied about the diaries' authenticity.

Heidemann said Stern investigations in East Germany had shown that Fischer was an alias and that his real name was Kujau.

The reporter had refused to reveal his source publicly, even after the diaries were pronounced fakes by West German officials last week.

But he said that his source was Fischer, who has a small store dealing in Hitler memorabilia in Stuttgart, after Stern publisher Henri Nannen revealed the name to reporters at a Bonn reception.

Neighbors in Stuttgart's Schreierstrasse said Tuesday they had not seen the dealer for about three weeks and that the steel shutters on his store windows were down.

Heidemann said he and Nannen doubted that Fischer-Kujau was in Eastern Europe. Nannen said the man had claimed to be speaking from a telephone booth in Czechoslovakia.

The 51-year-old reporter said the man claimed that he received the 62 diaries from East German sources, including two brothers — one a general and the other a museum director.

But they turned out to be a railway porter and a museum janitor, he said.

The man named another East German resident as a source for the diaries in his telephone call, Heidemann said. The revelations appeared certain to set off a new hunt to discover where Fischer-Kujau obtained the forged documents.

Gerd Schulte-Hillen, the chairman of Stern's publishing house, said in a television interview Tuesday the magazine had paid the equivalent of $3.75 million U.S. for them.

Stern began publishing the documents last month and sold publishing rights to several western periodicals. It has since said they will all get their money back.

Nannen said he believed East Germany planted the documents in the West to create political unrest.

Earlier, Heidemann called a news conference to deny allegations made by Stern that he had defrauded the magazine and that he may have enriched himself.

Stern has filed charges against Heidemann, and the Hamburg public prosecutor said Tuesday it could take months to determine whether there are grounds for prosecution.

Heidemann said he had acted in good faith and had submitted the diaries to the publishers over a period of two years. It was up to them to check their authenticity, he said.

Girl recovers

VANCOUVER (CP)—An 11-year-old Duncan girl mauled by a Bengal tiger in a Vancouver Island zoo last month has recovered from a bout of meningitis and is resting comfortably, a spokesman for the Vancouver Children's Hospital said Tuesday.

Veronica Shelepiuk contracted meningitis — inflammation of the membranes surrounding the brain and spinal cord — after a tiger bit her in the neck April 24 at the Kid's World Zoo in Duncan.

She was diagnosed as cured Monday after receiving antibiotics for several days, hospital spokesman Vivian Tepoorten said. She also underwent an operation Monday to close the wounds on her neck.

The child is "alert and awake, and has been eating. She is quite satisfactory," Tepoorten said.

She added that animal bites can often cause serious diseases through infection.

Duncan RCMP are investigating the attack, said a spokesman for the Duncan fish and wildlife branch, and the branch will soon present the zoo's owner with a list of recommendations to improve safety.

Veronica had been working as a volunteer in the privately-owned zoo and entered a cage containing two tigers when the mauling occurred. She suffered a tooth puncture to one side of the neck, a slash on the other side and was shaken up, Tepoorten said.

A zoo attendant has been suspended pending the results of the investigation.
